Nuvance Health

Is there a link between diabetes and pancreatic cancer?

Join the PANDOME study

Diabetes affects millions of people. Pancreatic cancer is an uncommon disease. In a very small number of people, the two diseases may be linked.

Nuvance Health is studying the connection between the early detection of pancreatic cancer and diabetes.

Who can join the study?

Screening criteria includes:

- Over the age of 50
- New diabetes diagnosis in the last 12 months
- Or new challenges in the management of your long-standing diabetes (e.g., increase in A1C of at least 2%)

All participants will undergo a screening process to ensure eligibility.

Why participate?

- Receive leading-edge care: Participants will have access to a top medical team at Nuvance Health and cutting-edge resources throughout the study.
- Gain valuable insights: Learn more about your own health through personalized assessments and support.
- Make a difference: Your participation could assist researchers in developing an early detection blood test for pancreatic cancer.

Learn more

For more information, call us at (203) 855-3551, TTY/Accessibility: (800) 842-9710 or scan the QR code. A team member will contact you within three business days.